PROJECTS

KlipFit for Levi's Denim De-Coded Hackathon — Images

OCT 2022

Worked on a team with Paris-based AI company KlipFit to help Levi's build an interactive size guide that uses body measurements through smartphone cameras. I worked on front-end logic with React and CSS styles/user flows from UX/UI designers.

Virtual Art Institute of Chicago — Deployed | FE Github | BE Github

JULY 2022

Full-stack group project with content sourced from the Art Institute of Chicago's public API. I built front-end logic using React, which included user authentication and API calls to generate content.

Twitter Clone — Deployed | Github (Back End)

AUG 2022

My General Assembly cohort worked as a team to recreate Twitter. My role was with the back end team, building views, serializers, paths, and endpoints using Python and Django.

SUMMARY

I'm a creative, problem-solving, impact-driven developer with an eye for design. I'm able to leverage my 6 years in tech sales to exhibit great skills in communication, delivery, and teamwork. My career change from tech sales to software engineering is fueled by my creative foundation and educational background, my passion to build, and the analytical mindset gained from tech sales. I can bring efficiency and poise to fast-paced environments to achieve team goals with tight deadlines.
